Correctional Nursing: Inmate Patient's Rights Were Not Violated.

Eighth Amendment The establishes a governmental obligation to provide medical care for those who are being punished by incarceration.

When prison guards or medical personnel show deliberate indifference to a prisoner's serious medical needs, their actions or inactions amount to a violation of the prisoner's Constitutional rights, for which the prisoner can sue.

To be deliberately indifferent a health care provider must be aware of the inmate patient's problems and the medical treatment the provider provided or neglected to provide for them must be so grossly incompetent, inadequate or excessive as to shock the conscience or to be intolerable to fundamental fairness.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT MARYI AND November 14, 2014

he inmate patient had become par-L tially paraplegic as a result of a stab wound to his neck apparently inflicted by another inmate inside the institution.

The patient uses a wheelchair, suffers from chronic pain, must self-catheterize to substance abuse and a suicide attempt.

The patient filed a lawsuit against the medical services in the prison.

of Maryland dismissed the case.

The Court noted the patient was regularly and consistently evaluated by the gallbladder removal at the hospital as unmedical and nursing staff. He received necessary surgery. physical therapy, a home exercise plan, medications and catheter supplies.

to a pain-management specialist. Drug- hospital, particularly the post-surgical paseeking was suspected but he was still given low-dose narcotics and non-steroidal anti-inflammatory meds.

The nurses followed up repeatedly on his genitourinary complaints with dip-stick that the daughter's affidavit containing her urine testing, urine cultures, PSA levels conclusions as a therapist who had conand antibiotics from a nurse practitioner.

back spasms with pain meds but denied his against a hospital, and the hospital was request for an anti-spasmodic that could entitled to dismissal of the case. Sperber v. potentially be used in a suicide attempt.

It was not relevant that the patient disagreed with his caregivers' decisions to withhold certain medications from him due to his history of substance abuse and suicidal ideation. Cason v. Wexford, 2014 WL 6391048 (D. Md., November 14, 2014).

Expert Witness: Family Therapist Consulted With A Nurse.

he eighty year-old patient had a com-L plex medical history before she came void and gets frequent urinary tract infec- to the hospital emergency department for tions. He also has a history of depression, chest pain. After a full medical work-up the physicians removed her gallbladder.

After two months in the hospital she corporation with the contract to provide asked that no further interventions be performed and that she be allowed to go The US District Court for the District home. She went home on hospice care and died two days later.

Her daughter's lawsuit challenged the

The daughter herself is a Marriage and Family Practice Therapist. She reviewed His complaints of pain led to a referral her late mother's medical records from the thology report having to do with the excised gallbladder, and consulted with her cousin who is a registered nurse.

The California Court of Appeal ruled sulted with a nurse was not sufficient evi-A nurse practitioner treated him for dence to support a malpractice lawsuit Univ. of Calif., 2014 WL 6058172 (Cal. App.,

LEGAL EAGLE EYE NEWSLETTER	LEGAL EAGLE EYE NEWSLETTER PO BOX 4592 SEATTLE WA 98194-0592
For the Nursing Profession	(206) 718-0861 www.nursinglaw.com subscriptions@nursinglaw.com
ISSN 1085-4924	Print $155/year Email $120/year
© 2014/2018 Legal Eagle Eye Newsletter	Check enclosed Bill me Credit/Debit card
	Visa/MC/AmEx/Disc No
E. Kenneth Snyder, BSN, JD
Editor/Publisher	Signature Expiration Date CVV Code Billing ZIP Code
	Expiration Date CVV Code Bining ZIP Code
PO Box 4592	Nama
Seattle, WA 98194–0592	Name
(206) 718-0861	Organization Address
(200) /10 0001	City/State/Zip
kensnyder@nursinglaw.com	Email for Email Edition*
www.nursinglaw.com	*Print subscribers: provide your email and receive Email Edition at no extra charge.

Legal Eagle Eye Newsletter for the Nursing Profession

December 2014 Page 3

More legal Information for nurses is available at Legal Eagle Eye Newsletter for the Nursing Profession Home Page.