Discrimination: US Appeals Court Upholds Religious Institutions' Exemption.

ligious Discrimination: Court Defines the the dispensing machine but did not docu- could give report early. The other nurse Limits Of Exemption For Religious Institu- ment in the patients' charts that the drugs told her she was too busy to take responsi*tions*, Legal Eagle Eye Newsletter for the were actually administered to the patients. Nursing Profession (18)6, Jun. '10, p. 8.

member of the Church of the Brethren. ently did give the narcotic medications to told the other she had not had a lunch She worked in a nursing home run by an the patients but failed to document the fol- break, felt a migraine headache coming on respects as a Catholic religious facility.

The nursing assistant's supervisor told her the long dresses and head coverings about these incidents the nurse said he was she wore on the job due to her own religious beliefs were inappropriate in a but assumed he simply forgot to finish his Catholic institution and were making some charting. residents and their families feel uncomfortable. The nursing assistant refused to alter her attire and was fired.

The exemption for relihealthcare gious institutions from Title VII of the US Civil Rights Act applies across the board to all aspects of reliaious discrimination in employment, not just hiring decisions.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOURTH CIRCUIT September 14, 2011

The lower Federal court ruled in 2010 that the nursing assistant could sue for reli- sary for the hospital to prove the nurse gious discrimination in the form of on-the- diverted narcotics for his own use. job harassment directed at her for her manner of dress mandated by her own faith.

Fourth Circuit reversed the lower court on could potentially suffer a negative outcome gious-discrimination lawsuits the US Con- an earlier dose was not documented. gress gave to healthcare institutions associtial hiring decisions. Kennedy v. St. Jo- nurse. seph's Ministries, ___ F. 3d _, 2011 WL 4068458 (4th Cir., September 14, 2011).

Misconduct: Nurse Terminated, Failed To Document Narcotics.

registered nurse was terminated after a hospital medication audit found court decision has been reversed four instances in a two-month period

There were also twenty-four instances to take report at that time. A geriatric nursing assistant was a in the same time period where he apparhospital policy within sixty minutes.

not able to recall exactly what happened

The nurse claimed he did not divert narcotics for personal use as he believed his termination implied.

However, he was not fired for narcotics diversion. He simply failed on numerous occasions to properly document administration of narcotics to his patients.

COURT OF APPEALS OF MINNESOTA September 12, 2011

The Court of Appeals of Minnesota ruled the hospital had grounds to terminate the nurse for misconduct. It was not neces-

Failing to document administration of narcotics properly is a patient-safety issue, The US Court of Appeals for the the Court said, the risk being that a patient

Being aware of the potential conseated with a particular religious faith applies quences and failing to do the required a situation which posed serious jeopardy to to all aspects of employment, not just ini- documentation is serious misconduct for a her patients' safety. Morrison v. Thos. Jef-Nimoh v. Allina Health, 2011 WL ferson Univ. Hosp., 2011 4008313 (Minn. App., September 12, 2011).

Discrimination: Nurse Did Not Give Adequate Report, No Racial Job Bias Found.

nurse wanted to leave work an hour which we reported in June 2010: Re- where the nurse withdrew narcotics from A early. She asked another nurse if she bility for the first nurse's patients or even

A few moments later the first nurse order of Catholic nuns and operated in all low-up assessment that was required by and had to pick up her children from school. Even though she knew the other When questioned by his supervisor nurse had patients of her own on the opposite end of the floor she gave a brief report about her own patients and said she was leaving her cell phone number at the unit secretary's desk if she had any questions.

After the first nurse walked off the unit the other nurse went to the charge nurse with the fact the first nurse had left and she really could not manage that nurse's patients and her own at that time. The charge nurse paged the first nurse who reportedly heard her name being paged but walked out of the hospital.

There were legitimate, non -discriminatory grounds to terminate the nurse.

The nurse left her patient assignments without authorization, without properly reporting and under circumstances that amounted to patient abandonment.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT PENNSYLVANIA September 8, 2011

The US District Court for the Eastern the grounds that the exemption from reli- if another dose was administered because District of Pennsylvania ruled the nurse, a minority, had no grounds to sue for race discrimination as she was fired for creating WL 4018252 (E.D.Pa., September 8, 2011).

Legal Eagle Eye Newsletter for the Nursing Profession